CARRANZA'S POWER CRUMBLES

LIER AMERIKAN PRIZES

CRIMSON VARSITY FAVORITE

By FRANK G. MENKE.

NEW LONDON, Ct., June 19.—Harvard made a clean sweep of both morning races in the forty-seventh annual rowing regatta with Yale. The Crimson second varsity eight defeated the Yale crew easily by ten lengths, and the Cambridge freshmen eight defeated the Blue crew by three lengths. Both races were over the twelve-mile course.

The third and last event of the regatta, the varied eight four-mile race, will be rowed late this afternoon. Yale's defeat in the two minor races was overwhelming. It had been expected that the Harvard crews would capture both, but few imagined the Crimson would win so easily.

Black clouds arched the Thames River and there was just enough wind blowing to ripple the water when the second varsity eight started for the head of their two-mile course to open the regatta. It started to rain just before the start of the race, making weather conditions far from ideal.

Shortly after 10 o'clock the referee's boat steamed up the course and final instructions were given to the men occupying the two strokeboats.

Vardon Winner of Golf Championship

FIRSTWICK, Scotland, June 19.—The British open golf championship was won here today by Harry Vardon, the celebrated English professional. His score was 206.

Vardon takes the title away from J. H. Taylor, who won the championship last year in 204. Taylor's score this year was 209.

The final round was played between Taylor, the former champion, and Vardon, and was witnessed by a gallery of 4,000.

Francis Quinlan, the open champion of America, who was an entrant, lost out through persistent bad form. His total score was 212.

Steamship City of Gloucester Dragged from Bar in Harbor

The steamer City of Gloucester, Captain Larkin, inbound from Gloucester early today, lost her course in the fog and grounded on Rye's Head Bar in the outer harbor. She was discovered there by the tug Betty Ross, which dragged her off, and she proceeded to her dock under her own steam. A hurried examination revealed no injuries, and she made her regular return trip to Gloucester later.

BOSTON'S EXPECT LARGEST POSTAL CHANGE

William F. Murray, congressman from Charlestown, will today be nominated for postmaster of Boston by President Wilson, according to dispatches received at noon today. The President was expected to send the nomination to the Senate this afternoon, and it is expected the nomination will be approved without contest.

Congressman Murray was in town today and got the news from the AMERICAN by telephone. He was at his law office at No. 111 Main street. In view of the fact that the nomination has not yet been actually sent to the Senate, he thought it best not to comment.

The nomination of Mr. Murray has not been unexpected. In fact it was predicted some time ago. Mr. Murray has been in Boston for the 17th of June celebration, and in attend his close descendant at Harvard. He was graduated there in 1894. He expects to return to Washington tonight.

It is probable that Congressman Murray's successor will be elected at the primary election in the fall, to save the city the expense of a special election.

Postmaster Mansfield said today that the news from Washington was unexpected by him. He has not received any word from the President.

In political circles it has been long expected that before Congress adjourned Mansfield would resign and his successor be appointed.

Girl Struck by Train, Leg Severed

Sixteen-year-old Martha Williams left her home completely unharmed at the moment when struck by an out-bound train while crossing the tracks at the Quincy station in a hurried attempt to catch the 7:55 train on her way to work in Boston today.

Miss Williams lives at No. 15 Currier street, Quincy, and is now at the Quincy Hospital on the dangerous list.

ALLA TO LEAVE ARM TO CAPITAL

By H. M. STANSBURY.

LAREDO, Tex., June 19.—Carranza's efforts to get General Francisco Villa back into the ranks of the Constitutionalist army have failed and disintegration has begun to spread in other directions.

Carranza's manipulation of the present muddled situation so as to get out with an army not reduced in numbers to an effective guard he will have earned a worthy position among diplomats.

Officials of the constitutionalist representatives in Washington are using that an armistice is the only way in which Carranza can now save his position. Carranza's support of his claim in the new provisional government. But there is not a general still loyal to the Constitutionals who will consent to an armistice. Carranza could not consent to an armistice even if he wished to.

CONCENTRATES ARMY.

In a desperate effort to prevent defections from the remaining Constitutional army in Villa, a movement to concentrate 20,000 men at Saltillo and start south immediately has been begun. This plan was decided upon at a conference concluded last night between Carranza and General Pablo Gonzalez, Francisco Murguia, Todor Elizondo, Cohn, Rodolfo, Pastors, Eulalia, Governor of Insurance, and Antonio Villares, Governor of Nuevo Leon.

The knowledge that Villa clothed with the men of his column better than any of the other generals has been the cause of serious differences among the officers of lesser rank. Reports of the movement today tell that all of the northern part of the State of Coahuila is now controlled by the Constitutionalists.

BREACH BETWEEN CARRANZA AND VILLA SAID TO BE COMPLETE

EL PASO, June 19.—The split between Carranza and Villa has become complete. It is learned here on the highest authority. But Villa will proceed with his army south toward Mexico City, disregarding Carranza's wishes. Carranza's appointment of Villa as head of the new central zone caused the open breach between the Northern Zone commander and Carranza's other divisional commanders.

It is said officially that Villa's forcible taking over of the Carranza army at Juarez was the step in a general plan to oust all Carranza's army in the territory where Villa dominates.

This not declaring that he is not under Carranza's orders. Villa is known to have told his chief that he will take the central strip of country leading to Mexico City while Carranza's other divisional commanders can be likewise down the east and west coasts.

According to this arrangement there would be two distinct military fronts, both military and civil, in the northern half of Mexico. The military front would be Villa's. The civil front would be Carranza's. Carranza would be directed by Carranza in the disposal of military and political affairs of the movement from his capital at Saltillo.

It is not doubtful that General Alvaro Obregon, commander of the western military zone, and General Pablo Gonzalez in the east will remain loyal to Carranza.

Villa already is reported to have been over the petty leaders of the Central zone to the south of Tamaulipas. The news that Carranza's troops have been repulsed in the battle of Saltillo, has come north to Villa City, is taken as a defeat. Carranza has been appointed as a zone commander, and Carranza's movement was a staunch Villa man.

WOMAN WITH BROKEN RIB IS SENT TO JAIL

Thirty days in the House of Correction was the sentence given Margaret Murphy, of Shawmut avenue, by Judge John F. Harris, Jr., of the West Roxbury District Court, when she conspired to be "sent away to rest up" because she was suffering from a fractured rib.

Miss Murphy had been arrested on a charge of drunkenness. Her rib had been fractured, she said, by two men who accosted her on the street the night before. They kicked her, when she tried to get away. Her plea of guilty was entered for the purpose of securing proper medical treatment.

"Do you really want to be sent somewhere, to be cared for?" asked Judge Harris. "Well," he said, after a moment's thought, "I will send you to the House of Correction for thirty days."

Five male inmates faced otherwise. Two were released after pleading guilty, two others who entered the same plea were placed on probation and the other was let off with a $5 fine.

Royalty at Ascot Gold Cup Pageant

LONDON, June 18.—Gold cup day at Ascot provided a brilliant spectacle. The royal party included the King and Queen, former King Manuel of Portugal, Queen Augusta, Queen Alexandra and her sister, Dowager Empress of Russia. The gown display was a riot of color. There were many charming elephantine awnings. Among the crowd in the royal enclosure were Ambassador and Mrs. Tuck, the latter in dove gray.

flight to Boston has been followed by her mother's suit for divorce.

GAIL BORDEN SUED BY WIFE FOR DIVORCE

NEW YORK, June 18.—Gail Borden, the millionaire milk dealer, will sail for Europe today with a sum of money in his pocket demanding an absolute divorce for his wife, Helen Vale Borden. The summons was sent to New York yesterday from Los Angeles and arrived by a deputy sheriff on Borden in his office.

"Only divorce papers," Borden remarked smilingly. "Why, it could be much worse. I won't be on hand in California for the trial. I am sailing for Europe tomorrow. Good-bye."

Mrs. Borden asks a decree on the ground of desertion. Three years ago she sued for divorce in Los Angeles on the same ground and her husband was very willing to let her get a decree.

The court demanded that Borden appear. Borden did appear. He was told by the court he would have to tell the reasons why he and his wife had agreed to divorce or she would not be granted a decree. The millionaire considered the matter carefully and then said he did not care to stir the bones of the family skeleton in court. The judge then dismissed the wife's complaint.

Mrs. Borden informed the court she and her husband had disagreed over Ramona, their eighteen-year-old daughter. The girl was placed in a private school at Pompton Lake, N. J., but she got weary of being alone and ran away. She said she had everything money could buy, but wasn't happy. She said she wanted a home and a mother's love. She was found in Boston and taken to the Los Angeles home of her mother, where she has since remained.

ZIMMERMAN LOVE NOTES IN WOMAN'S SUIT

NEW YORK, June 18.—The latest version in Elizabeth, 12, yesterday was Miss Ivy Wareham, who has said Eugene Zimmerman, father of the Duchess of Manchester, for $100,000 for alleged breach of promise of marriage.

In a sensational and a skippy tale which she told yesterday, Miss Wareham said that she had seen the father-in-law of the Duchess of Manchester, who she said was a "business woman," Miss Wareham said to an American reporter, as she waved her hands over the ferry door around her. "And I do not need Eugene Zimmerman's money."

"But I'll take this case into court and force him to pay that $100,000. I don't want to teach him and his kind that they can't get away with every woman who has a chance to do so. If women would do so often and spend less time in silly suits, there would be fewer of these millionaire flirts."

Mr. Zimmerman's son-in-law, the Duke of Manchester, at the Latin Club, yesterday declared he believed that the suit was founded on untrue charges. He declared further that his father-in-law had been the recipient of many blackmailing letters. These letters he declared were anonymous.

"The Duchess and I will stand by Mr. Zimmerman, and we have agreed to fight this suit through every court," said Manchester.

LETTERS DEMANDED MONEY.
"One letter—the latest, by the way—had it that it would be best to pay any sum demanded of Mr. Zimmerman. The letter said that it would be better to pay than stand for the publicity that would follow a refusal. Well, we have decided not to pay. No one could stand such a disastrous threat."

Mr. Zimmerman has nothing to fear. We have communicated with his lawyers. We are ready for the fight. Mr. Zimmerman will find me as his side every minute."

When Miss Wareham and her lawyer, Philip C. Samuels, of No. 500 Broadway, Manhattan, were asked indignantly that the anonymous letters could be traced back to Miss Wareham.

"Miss Wareham and I will gladly defend our share of the expense in tracing these anonymous communications," declared Samuels. "What silly notion!"

Miss Wareham, when the Duke's statement was repeated to her. "Does he insinuate that I wrote the letters?"

SAYS ZIMMERMAN PROPOSED TO HER "TWENTY TIMES"

Why, pray, should I write blackmailing letters when in my lawyer's safe there are about one hundred letters that Gene Zimmerman wrote to me?"

"My case rests on these letters. I have nothing more worth listening to than some of Gene's epistles."

"I met Gene Zimmerman about nine years ago. I was then living in West No. 215. He became infatuated at once. And really, he was an awfully dear old chap. I liked him immediately."

PROPOSED TWENTY TIMES.
"President? Why, that man proposed to me about twenty times. He proposed in cafes, on the street, in the theatre, at my house—why, he proposed so often that finally, after two years of proposals, I accepted him. He'd call me up twice a day from Cincinnati and from Frankfurt, Mich. Nobody but a real Romeo would do that."

"He had a fashion of putting his arms around me and calling me 'Darling.'"

"I love you, adore you, dearie, he'd say. I'm going to marry you, dearie. But I do not want you to stay in the city. Go out to the country. Get yourself a nice place out there. Sit it up for your dogs and lay out beautiful gardens and plant lots of shade trees. I'll come out and see it. If I like it I'll buy it and we'll live there together."

MILITANTS OF ENGLAND SEE BIG TRIUMPH

women of England, and I am determined to share in it," declared Miss Faulkner.

Mrs. "General" Flora Drummond, one of the chief lieutenants of the militants, voiced her jubilation in vigorous phrases.

"Premier Asquith would have regretted it if he had not capitulated," said she. "We are becoming more determined and we are gaining more converts daily. We have got beyond the point where we will trade any longer with the British government. We can now see victory."

The demands of the women will be laid before Premier Asquith tomorrow, and there will be a strong hint of a final conquest in the request that the Premier immediately introduce a bill in Parliament giving unlimited voting privileges to all women.

Already the women have a limited franchise, but they want equal privileges with men.

WOMEN OUTNUMBER MEN.
Premier Asquith is expected to take the demands of the women under advisement, but if the women suspect that he is trying to evade the issue there will probably be a lively scene.

King George's government has been steadily opposing liberal suffrage for the reason that the ballot in the hands of women would give the government into complete feminine control. The number of women in Great Britain far exceeds that of the men, so that women voters could control Parliament and all other branches of the government, electing themselves to office and making any laws they desired.

They would control the colonial policy of the government, and thus make their influence felt around the world. On account of the inexperience of women as voters and lawmakers, the members of the government have feared that feminine control would plunge the United Kingdom into chaos and perhaps throw the country into war.

James Kier Hardie and other Socialist leaders have aligned themselves with the women's party in the hope of making a political alliance of women get the vote.

FLYING POLICEMAN A 20th Century Need

NOT YET, BUT SOON

The policeman in an aeroplane is on the way.

Chief Sebastian of the Los Angeles police told his fellow chiefs in convention at Grand Rapids about it.

He said the aviator-policeman patrolling a beat in the air would be an addition to the forces of metropolitan cities before many years, and declared that aircraft would become as useful to the police of the future as they were to the Army today.

He cited several incidents in California of bandits and Gould and Katherine Clemmons could. Howard's former wife, in an effort to establish the validity of a $14,000 tax lien, which George says he holds on the defendant's property on Fifth avenue.

Strange Tale by 'Lost' Everett Girl

An eighteen-year-old Everett girl walked into the Chelsea police station early today with a strange story. "I am Liza Veragum," she said. "My home is at No. 17 Ferry street, Everett. But I haven't been there since last Sunday. Last night I met a man in Boston. He persuaded me to go to a restaurant with him, but I became frightened and ran away. I went running and finally started for home, but couldn't find my way about. So I came here. The Chelsea police telephoned Everett and Sergeant Osborn came and took the girl home."

HAPPENINGS IN SOCIETY

GRANT-JENKINS INVITATIONS ARE OUT

POPULAR WINTHROP GIRL WILL HAVE AN ELABORATE WEDDING

Invitations were received today by Winthrop and Boston friends of Miss Rosalie Marcha Jenkins, a prominent young suffragist, for her wedding, on June 25, to Owen Grant of Somerville. Miss Jenkins is well known in Winthrop social circles and has taken part in numerous amateur theatricals. She is an ardent "votes for women" campaigner.

Miss Jenkins will be the first of her class at the Sacred Heart Academy to wed, her marriage coming three days before that of Miss Allen Coughlin, one of her classmates, who is to marry James Mahoney on July 2.

The bride-to-be is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Newton Jenkins of No. 175 Pleasant street, Winthrop. The ceremony is to be performed at 7 o'clock in the evening at the Church of St. John the Evangelist, Winthrop, the Rev. John H. Griffin officiating. Miss Bay Jenkins will be maid of honor and the bridesmaids will be Miss Alice Murray of Dorchester and Miss Margaret O'Brien. Miss Katherine Jenkins will be flower girl. John Burke will be best man and the ushers will be Robert Jenkins, Rudolph Murray, Representative Frank McCreath, former Senator Richard Teeling and Samuel Hall.

The bride-in-his gown will be of white satin on train, trimmed with rose point duchess lace, with a veil of duchess lace.

Following the ceremony there will be a reception at the home of the parents of the bride.

Mrs. Sidney E. Hutchinson of Philadelphia and Beverly Farms is giving a musicale at the Beverly Farms Baptist Church this evening. Mrs. Hutchinson has a wonderfully beautiful voice. Her accompanist is Miss Edith Mason.

One of the most interesting events of tomorrow will be the wedding of Miss Adelaide Harvey Chase, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Chase of Temple street, West Newton, and Hiram Tuttle of Salem, Pittsfield, N. H. The ceremony takes place at 4 o'clock in the evening at the First Methodist Church, in West Newton, and the ceremony will be performed by the Rev. Julian C. Haynes, pastor of the church.

Miss Chase is devotedly popular in the younger social set in West Newton. Her maid of honor will be Miss Louise Dillaway of Montclair, N. J., a cousin of the bridegroom. Mr. Tuttle is a graduate of the late Governor Hiram Tuttle of New Hampshire and is in the lumber business in Pittsfield, N. H. After the wedding trip the young couple will make their home in Pittsfield, N. H.

Mr. and Mrs. Landon Humphreys (June Fairfield) were in town a few hours during the week, at the "Copley-Place," on their way to New London, where they are to entertain a party of young friends on board Humphreys' senior's yacht for the last race. They will return to New Ipswich, N. H., with some New York friends to visit Mrs. Humphreys' mother, Mrs. James C. Harr, after which they will go on a cruise.

A pearl necklace from the Humphreys family and a fine antique pearl bracelet from Lady Lane of England were among the wedding gifts received.

Miss Rosalie Marcha Jenkins, the popular Winthrop suffragist, who is to wed Owen Grant of Somerville on June 25.

Reckless Driver Kidnaps Policeman

FARGO, N. D., June 13.—John Lyngstad, 37, a farmer, was speeding over turning kidnaper when Police Officer John Koven attempted to arrest him for reckless driving. Koven found Lyngstad driving a team in North Broadway and occupying most of the street, according to his story. He stopped the farmer and ordered him to drive to the police station. Lyngstad consented, but asked the policeman to ride with him. With the officer safely in the rig the wary farmer whipped his horses into a run and reached the city limits before he could be stopped. Koven walked back without the farmer.

To Keep Skin in Fine Condition All Summer

It would be much better for the skin if time cream, powder or soap were used during the heated term. Used with perspiration, dust and grease, these things are anything but beneficial. Ordinary soaps will do more for the complexion and without giving an oily, streaky, moist or sandy appearance. It is the ideal preparation for the season, as it not only keeps the pores clear, but still removes bacteria of dead skin which have been added to dirt on the face. It is especially fitting for the summer, when a youthful complexion is of the greatest importance. It is applied at night to the skin and in the morning it is used to keep the skin from sagging or wrinkling. It is a perfect skin medicine, there is nothing better than a face bath made by dissolving 1 rounded teaspoonful of it in each bowl of water.—ADVERTISEMENT.

PAYS BILL WITH CHECK; ACCOUNT SHORT; FINED

Criminal action will hold against a man who pays a bill with a check, and accepts any excess change in cash, if his bank account is overdrawn when the check is presented, according to a decision by Judge John Perrin, Jr. in the West Roxbury District Court.

Judge Perrin's ruling came in the case of George Foster of Brookline, who formerly lived at Jamaica Plain, and who had paid his grocery bill with a check. The bill was for $22.50. He gave a $25 check, and received $2.50 in cash. His bank account was not honored by the bank and his arrest followed.

Foster showed he had paid his weekly store bill in this manner for several months. He claimed the trouble arose out of the failure of his employer to forward his usual commission that week. He further showed that he had sufficient money in the bank, at present, to meet the check.

But Judge Perrin held criminal intent was proven. He then fined Foster $25. An appeal was taken, and the case will be fought in the upper courts.

EAGAN MEETS READ IN BOUT AT CAMBRIDGE

By JACK CONWAY.
JACK EAGAN, the Australian light-weight champion, will receive a severe test when he clinches with Lee Egan of South Boston in a twelve-round bout before the University A. C. of Cambridge tonight. Eagan has been having a grand form during the past six months and has been made a favorite over the last from the land of the Southern Cross.

Read is a clever boxer. It is said a thorough master of the ring game and should give a good account of himself. The weight for the bout is 142 pounds. This will give Eagan a big advantage, as he is the best at this weight, while Read seldom scales more than 135.

Mike Glover was originally scheduled to battle Eagan but he has been substituted for Glover and does not seem to think that Eagan's weight advantage will play such an important part in deciding the result of the fight as the "rags" believe.

THERE will be another international encounter between Harry Sawyer, who built from thirty to forty, and Gardner Brooks of Lowell. Both of these boys weigh about 125 pounds and are expected to put up a fast contest. Sawyer is the former national light-weight champion and has taken on weight since he joined the ranks of the professional.

There will also be two six-round contests. John Thomas of Dorchester will meet Howard Melton of Cambridge, while the covers Charles Brown will battle Dave Brown, Melton's eastern opponent.

JACK JOHNSON'S press agents have been having a rough time in getting the heavyweight champion to come into the daily press. They finally decided to have the day-after-tomorrow performance. The fight in the role of referee. The fight was not to be held fairly well. It was not to be held fairly well. It was not to be held fairly well.

PAR to it from us to accuse them of siding Johnson's supporters, but there is not any anything that Mr. Johnson is disappointed as a result of the way the American public is treating the battle between Johnson and Moran which will be staged in Paris June 27.

The press of this country has looked on the contest with suspicion while the dear old public has refused to get interested in the fight. This probably prompted the men behind the bout to wish Johnson upon the stage.

JOHNSON was a wonderful boxer when he was in his prime, but his worst enemy was never stronger to accuse him of being even a fair actor. If O'Connell part is changed so all that distinguishes dark-skinned Moorish gentleman will have to do it all the more rounds with a stage hand, skip a rope for a few minutes and give an exhibition of bag-punching. Johnson will probably get away with the fight, but even an event is very unlikely to occur as will be forced to give a boxing class when we wish to give the negro the once over. They again we do not believe that Uncle Sam is the habit of putting on Shakespeare at the institution of hard labor. And then, if he were, it would be difficult to secure a fair actress to take off the part of Desdemona.

DODIE MURPHY is training hard for his twelve-round bout with Gilbert Talbot, which will be staged at the Albee A. C. on Wednesday night. The South Boston boxer says that he does not believe he will experience any difficulty in reducing to 125 pounds. Talbot will do most of his training here in Boston in Charles. Old claims he will win from Murphy even though the Philadelphia Cover is rated as a heavy performer. He points to the fact that he fought a twenty-round draw in California with Frankie Brown, who is considered one of the best boxers in the lightweight division. Talbot is ready down to 125 pounds and so would enter the fight on his right under his belt, as he says.

QUINET AGAIN TURNS
In a High Score

FRANKLIN, Scotland, June 12.—Though heavily beaten, Francis Quinet, open golf champion of the United States, stuck to his guns in the British open tournament today. His persistence was in marked contrast with that of Harold H. Hilton, former British amateur champion, who withdrew from competition when he found that he had no opportunity of winning.

Quinet played as badly last forenoon, however, as he did yesterday, and he turned in a score of 55 for the third eighteen holes. This made his total for 24 holes 110 strokes, he having made an 85 on the first 18 and 75 on the second.

J. J. C. Jenkins, British amateur champion, scored a 75 this morning.

Faulkner Not to Head Cubs, Says Chas. Taft

NEW YORK, June 13.—Charles F. Taft, alleged owner of the Chicago National League club, denies the story from the West to the effect that President Thomas of the Cubs is soon to be relieved of his duties. "I have nothing to say whatever on baseball," said he. "I leave that all to Mr. Thomas."

"But it is not true that Mr. Thomas is to be succeeded by Mr. Faulkner of Columbus, Ohio?" Mr. Taft was asked.

The Cincinnati millionaire laughed heartily at this.

"Faulkner," he said, "why they must be mad. I have about as much chance to have him take the presidency of the Cubs as I have of conferring such an honor on William Jennings Bryan."

Bill had to take a lot of exercise the other day.
He, Mrs. Bill and I and my wife all went for an outing at Bleak Island, three miles out in Morse Lake. When we got there and started to unload the boat Bill gives me a look. "Good Lord!" he groans. "Smatter?" I ask, picking a brick of cheese out of the water. "I forgot," he weeps, "the case of

"You're elected"—me firm-like—"to take a six-mile row."
So off Bill went.
Three hours later Bill came back—or was that left of him.

He left about ten pounds out in the lake.

"Never," swears Bill, "would I do so much work for anything else."

"But it was in a good cause," says I. "True," says Bill, swabbing his face, "it's a long day that has no Hampden Ale."

Polo, and That 'National Defeat'

The Cup Will Not Come Back for Many Years Probably—and This Country Need Not Worry Over It

Copyright, 1914, by the Hearst Company

The real miracle is that the polo championship ever came to this country.

The happy correspondent of the London Times is probably correct in his statement that the championship "is probably going away from Long Island for a long spell of years."

Good luck and a pleasant voyage to that cup; the United States will not weep over it.

Polo is a good game for the few; but it is not for the many, and, therefore, it cannot represent America or American ability.

It happens that this country possesses in Devereux Milburn the best polo player in the world, probably. The Waterbury brothers, in condition, are at least as good as any two Englishmen.

The American series of victories, three in succession, were due to the organizing and financing ability of H. F. Whitney. This young man devoted to the building up and managing of a perfect polo team as much energy as his father would have put into the building of a traction system. His father, if he looks down on polo games, must regret that he left his son so much money as to make polo instead of real work his career.

The accident of three successive American polo victories will not happen again. Thousands play polo in England, and only a few dozens really play the game in America.

Only an accident, unlimited money and wonderful individual efficiency could have supplied among the very few American players a team that could beat repeatedly the pick of the thousands that play polo in England and in India—including the young men of the British army.

As it was, our men need not have lost. But they are not army officers in constant training like the British. They are rich, self-indulgent young men out of training the greater part of the year and never really trained.

Two of the team at least weighed a great deal too much. All of the ponies were overloaded. Almost every time an Englishman and an American started on even terms for the ball the Englishman got there first. Whoever knows horses knows the difference that thirty or forty pounds extra make to a small horse going at top speed. There was too much extra weight for the American team.

The Americans have the satisfaction of knowing—if it is any satisfaction—that they have the world's best player in Milburn, undoubtedly the best four in the world, with proper training and management.

The game is one that calls for courage, absolute fearlessness, skill, wonderful co-ordination of sight and muscle, and the greatest presence of mind.

It is a good thing to know that the Americans possessed these qualities and have proved it three times in succession.

It is not probable, as we have said, that our little handful of American polo players will again produce four capable of defeating the best among the thousands that play in England.

For Americans to attack the English at polo will be like attacking them at the game of cricket, or like their trying to beat us at baseball. We haven't the polo men to choose from, as they haven't the baseball players.

A game that only a few can play need not greatly excite or interest Americans.

It is the game of the rich, the self-indulgent and the idle. It does not require fine qualities. The United States can be contented with the knowledge that it possesses them and not worry about the cup.

Everything that has to do with the horse is more or less a matter of the past. One automobile runabout means more to civilization than all the polo ponies and race horses combined.

If we can beat the world in automobiles, flying machines, and the other things of today, we can cheerfully leave to others the supremacy in polo—and we shall probably have to do so, cheerfully or otherwise.

The English, by the way, will probably forgive the apparent national egotism which makes us call Milburn the best polo player in the world. They know that he is the best player. It may comfort them, however, to remember that his father was English born and that he is an English university man.

There were several good small sermons in the recent defeat of the American team. But it would be ungracious to preach them too definitely.

THEODORE ROOSEVELT MADE A MISTAKE THAT Ambassador Page would never make. In addressing his big audience in London he began, "Mr. President and Gentlemen." The Daily Express called attention to the fact that he forgot to say, as he should have said, "Mr. President, my Lords and Gentlemen."

Those who are humiliated by this distressing lapse on Roosevelt's part will be comforted by the fact that Mr. Wilson's Ambassador Page would not have made a mistake of that kind.

Questions Answered

ARMY AND NAVY OF LATIN AMERICA

R. L. W.—The combined army and navy strength of the Latin American republics is, army (including total available strength), 2,650,000; navy (including all kinds of craft), 54 vessels, with personnel of 27,000 officers and men. Of this naval strength all that amounts to anything are the 9 cruisers (but not first-class) battleships of Argentina (3), Brazil (2) and Chile (3). Mexico has practically no navy. The total possible max-strength of the United States is probably around 12,000,000.

DAN WEBSTER

P. C. G.—Webster's presidential prospects were blighted by his attitude on slavery, as outlined in his famous "seventh of March" speech. In that speech he took the ground that slavery was justified by the Constitution and that the Abolitionists had no right to attempt to disrupt the institution. As a consequence the Abolitionists and their friends were angered, and Webster's chances for the presidency vanished forever.

Mob-Dominion Fear Groundless

By EDWIN MARKHAM

MR. BOUCK WHITE, in "The Carpenter and the Rich Man," gives us a startling interpretation of the Gospel; it sweeps in the social unrest of today. Here is a bit of it: "Fear of 'mob-dominion' rides some people today like an incubus. They behold the uprising among the multitudes as a maddening, prophetic sign sweeping over the world. And a great terror is held upon them. "But fear was never more groundless. The workers will not be dangerous to this present civilization until they have learned to hang together. And when they have learned to hang together, they will have reached a loftiness of mentality that will make them, not a destroying force, but rather a contribution to civil society. "Visitors to a lunatic asylum are frequently impressed by the small number of guards; and ask: 'Is it not dangerous?' The inmates suddenly combining could easily overpower the keeper. "But the lunatics cannot combine. In the deepest sense, the inability to combine is the distinguishing mark of lunacy. The moment they become civilized enough to pull together they would be sane, and would not need a keeper. So long as the lunatics are in a state of government, there is no danger that they will obtain the government—that is, that madmen stage their revolt." "The masses are the most conservative class in all the social aggregate. They are the least original, the most unfriendly to innovation. Anything that stirs them into mental activity is distinctly a sign of civilization. It begets a people of fine excitability about public affairs, to the quickening of social energy. "Until the mind of the populace, always so heavy with sleep, has been awakened, all efforts at civil revival will be abortive. Heroic attempts are in process to make the political dry bones live. "Foredoomed to failure, the logician, measure, owed by the war, will frustrate all reform endeavors. Not until by the shock and propulsion of a great folk movement, the masses have been kindled into an intellectual life, will the ballot be safe in their hands. "They who know the labor movement otherwise than by hearsay understand well that red propaganda is a danger to civilization. Unless the folk uprising will exhaust itself in mere internal dissension, the world will be a better place; seeing that the internal dissension will be a benefit to the world and not a malediction.

Could We Live Without Dust?

By EDGAR LUCIEN LARKIN

HOW does dust diffuse the sun's rays? How does dust give the blue appearance to the sky? How does dust act on the sea? Could we live without dust? It was not known that dust has an importance almost beyond conception until within a few years. But now a number of the ablest physicians have made refined and very accurate experiments. Here is a famous "seventh of March" speech. In that speech he took the ground that slavery was justified by the Constitution and that the Abolitionists had no right to attempt to disrupt the institution. As a consequence the Abolitionists and their friends were angered, and Webster's chances for the presidency vanished forever.

"All right, preacher, old kid." "The men in the office where Tom worked were in the habit of meeting in a saloon nearly every evening for the drinks every evening after work. Before Tom married Jennie, he also had this habit and drank his share with the rest of them and sometimes even more than his share. But after getting married he saw it was so foolish and such false fun that he stopped going with the bunch and hurried home every evening instead. "Some of the fellows kidded him about being 'husked' and a 'right wad' and one evening when some of the old crowd said to him, 'Aw, come on and be a live one and show a little of your manly side. You'll be a live one all right when most of you are played, and as for the speed part of it, I don't know of any of you that can show any more than I have, except in the drinking line. That stuff is the bunk, fellows, and I've never got you anywhere. But let me tell you WHERE YOU ARE NOW until you start to go back, for no one in this world stands still. If either goes ahead or goes back, and personally I'm for full speed ahead.' "As Tom left them, amid much laughter on their part, one hollered after him—'All right, preacher, old kid.' "Funny thing, thought Tom. A fellow will spend four or five dollars over for that good fellow bank, but couldn't get a woman, but save for where there that to buy a new hat—H. C. (To be continued.)

EFFEMINATE AMERICANS

If Our Men, Who Have Accomplished So Much, Are Effeminate, More Power to That Trait

By DOBO THY DIX

ONE of our very distinguished admirals and a lot of smaller boys are very much exercised over the fact that most of our school teachers are women. This horrible state of affairs is due to do violence to the nature of the male, because it subjects boys to an impressionable and to the effeminizing influence of the female of the species. The effect of this, say these authorities, can be disastrous to a boy, and result in making him a nabby pampy and Miss Lillian. In fact, they assert that the woman teacher has already gotten in her deadly work, and is responsible for the effeminate American man. There are no women teachers in boys' schools abroad, they cry, and look at the Englishman! Look at the Frenchman! Look at the German, and then look at the American, and turn off your woman teachers. Naturally my views may be colored by prejudice in favor of my own, but where are these effeminate American men whose weakness and flabbiness make brave sailors weak? Nobody has ever denied that the English are first-class fighting men, but the effeminate American men held their own with them in two other important little wars. Admirals Dewey and Sampson and Scutley made no complaint of the effeminate American crews at their backs at Manila and Santiago, and I guess that if you should tell the Spanish how effeminate our men are, they would hate to go to war with a nation of real manly men. Also, it is a matter of history that to other such bloody battles are recorded as those fought during the Civil War when the effeminate American men engaged in a fraternal strife. When it comes to so-called manly sports the effeminate American men are among those also present. At all the international contests the pussy-footed American man has taken away the prize under his discomfited competitors have shrieked "Foul play!" to cover up their failure. It was a Miss Nancyish American boy who had gone to school to women teachers who won the golf championship against Scotland's pride. It is an effeminate American man who keeps the international prize trophy on this side of the Atlantic, and even his boat is called "she." It was an effeminate American man who discovered the North Pole, and another effeminate American man has just been hired to go to England to manage its greatest railway. It took two effeminate American men to build in eighteen months the great number of the Erie plant at Manchester that English contractors declared they couldn't erect under six years, and all over the world, when bridges are needed in a hurry, or railroads, or tunnels, or breakwaters are to be built swiftly, it is the effeminate American man who undertakes the job and gets away with the credit. Let it not be forgotten that it was an effeminate American man, aided by other effeminate Americans, who dug the Panama Canal after Franco had failed at it. Wherever else on earth are there as many men who have started at the very bottom of the ladder and climbed up to the top of it by their own unaided strength as there are in this country. Nowhere else are things done on so big a scale, things that require courage, daring, ability, sheer brain and brawn to accomplish, and if this be effeminacy, more power to it. If the American man of today is effeminate he certainly cannot go to the men of other nations to learn manliness, because he waits them at their own games already. In a fight or a frolic, at work or at play, at making money or spending it, he can hold his own with the best. Those who object to having women teachers for boys do not claim that the women are, less capable of instructing the boys in the text books. Their only fear is that the influence of the teacher will be to put prissy, prunes-and-primrose notions in the little heads, and that a boy taught by women will take to doing Maternity embroidery instead of playing football for amusement. In reality, just the opposite is likely to take place, because every woman secretly admires a brave man type of man; every woman in her heart puts physical strength in a man above every other desirable quality; every woman here is a big, brassy, wash-buckling brute. Look how little chance even the most intelligent, sedate, old-fashioned man has with women if he is puny of stature, weak-eyed and engaged in some ladylike profession, such as teaching—which women regard as no proper occupation for an able-bodied man. Therefore, if you want anybody to inspire the childlike mind with ideals of valor, and manly strength, and daring, look to a woman to do it. It is she who thrills to every high empire and who leads her scholars by her enthusiasm for what a man ought to do, and she is the sort of a man who does things. Women place a thousand times more stress on strength and courage than men themselves do, and perhaps the reason that American men so notably possess these qualities is because they have been taught by women teachers, and not by men teachers. At any rate, as long as our present educational system continues to turn out the same brand of American men, there is no call to worry.

Good Manners for Men

By MRS. FRANK LEARNED

Author of "The Etiquette of New York Today."

Bis courteous manners, common sense and kindness of heart, a man shows his good breeding. A well-bred man is never pretentious, self-asserting, aggressive or familiar. He understands how to say the right thing and when to preserve silence. He makes no other real at ease because he never fails to regard their rights and feelings, and he is never supercilious and never patronizing toward any one. He is always courteous toward women, old or young, plain or beautiful, and ever deferential toward older persons, tender and protective toward children. In a word, he is a gentleman, a word so much abused that it has almost ceased to be understood, for it is a subtle term which escapes the recognition of the uninitiated. A well-bred man is prompt in replying to invitations and if unable to keep an engagement he hastens to send a message of regret and excuses in time to prevent others from being put to inconvenience. A man may not ask permission to call on a woman unless he has some very good reason to believe that she prefers the suggestion to come from him. The rule is that he should wait to be asked to make a first call, because a woman has the right to decide and choose who may be admitted to her home. This rule applies especially to new acquaintances. A man wishes to be introduced to a woman he may ask a friend to introduce him to her. He must be sure that the lady's permission is requested. At a dance it is expected that he should introduce himself to young girls to his friends and her guests. A man who is introduced to a lady who is talking with another man, he is expected to wait until the man has an apology for addressing his friend, and then he may say to her: "I have a little conversation and do not desire to interrupt your conversation, but I am sometimes indulged in by others." A man does not offer to shake hands with a woman, but save for where there that to buy a new hat—H. C. (To be continued.)

In-Shoots

When opportunity comes for an ad, your cash, better let the old kid know while until you think it over. There is nothing so discouraging as to tell a joke and not raise a laugh. It is useless to be a judge of human nature if you do not work at it. Those who throw mud are generally pretty good about it. Those who marry for money often find wealth mighty elusive, too. We are never too old to learn anything that will never be of value to us. It is difficult to ask a girl for her photograph in a way that will prevent her thinking that you want to see her. The man who fails to come down when the church collection plate is passed should at least show some attention to the preacher. When an idea hits a small man it is apt to stagger him.
